The youngest was, after the Restoration, made, first, Bishop of Bristol, and then of Chichester. He was the great-grand-uncle to the present Lord Dorchester, who having been bred to the military line, was honoured with the military Order of the Bath, in 1776, and advanced to the Peerage of Great-Britain, Aug. 21, 1786. The eldest, Sir John Elliott; succeeded his father in title and estate, and left both to his son, the present Sir Francis Elliott, Bart. of Stobbs, who is now living, and consequently was nephew to his late lordship, who was the youngest son of Sir Gilbert, and the only late surviving one. He, at an early time of life, was sent to the University of Leyden, where he made considerable progress in classical learning, and spoke with fluency and elegance the German and French languages. Being designed for a military life, he was sent from thence to the celebrated Ecole Royal du genie militaire, at La Fere, in Picardy, where he laid the foundation of what he so conspicuously exhibited in the defence of Gibraltar. In 1735, he became a volunteer in the 23d regiment of foot, or Royal Welsh Fuzileers, and soon after was admitted into the engineer corps, corps; at Woolwich; from whence he purchased the Adjutancy of the 2d troop of horse grenadiers, in which he became a Captain and Major, as well as Lieutenant-Colonel, when he resigned his commission as an engineer. In 1759, he quitted the horse-guards, and was selected to raise, form, and discipline the 1st regiment of light horse, which bore his name. Having gone through various departments in different services with the greatest marks of bravery and military knowledge, in 1775 he was appointed Commander in Chief in Ireland, which he soon relinquished, and was appointed to the command of Gibraltar, in a fortunate hour for the safety of that important fortress, where he, by a cool and temperate demeanour, maintained his station for three years of constant investment, in which all the powers of Spain were employed, and where he never spent his ammunition in useless parade, but seized on the proper moment, with the keenest perception, to make his attack with success, which ever crowned his endeavours. All the eyes of Europe were on his garrison; and his conduct has justly exalted him to the most elevated rank in the military annals of the day. On his return to England, the gratitude of the British senate was as forward as the public voice in giving him that distinguished mark his merit deserved, to which his Majesty was pleased to add that of the Peerage, on June 14, 1787, and permitting his lordship to take also the arms of the fortress he had so bravely defended, to perpetuate to futurity his noble conduct, which, with what was given by William the Conqueror, is now his lordship's armorial insignia. His lordship was born in 1718; married Anne, daughter of Sir Francis Drake, of Devonshire, by whom, who died Feb. 12, 1772, he had issue, the present Lord Augustus, a Lieutenant-Colonel in the army; and a daughter, married to Mr. Fuller, of Bayly-Park in Sussex.
